Introduction

Robin Allen QC needs to gather and use certain information about individuals.

These can include clients, customers, suppliers, business contacts, employees and other people the practice has a relationship with or may need to contact.

This policy describes how this personal data must be collected, handled, stored to meet the practice's data protection standards – and to comply with the law.

Why this Policy Exists

This data protection policy exists to ensure that Robin Allen QC;

- Complies with Data Protection law and follows good practice
- Protects the rights of staff, clients, customers and fellow members of Cloisters' Barristers' Chambers
- Is open about how it stores and processes individual's data
- Protects itself from the risks of a data breach.

Data Protection Law

The General Data Protection Regulation describes how organisations must collect, handle, and store personal information.

These rules apply regardless of whether data is stored electronically, on paper or on other materials.

To comply with the law, personal information must be collected and used fairly, stored safely and not disclosed unlawfully.

The General Data Protection Regulation is underpinned by six important principles. They say that personal data must be:

1. processed lawfully, fairly, and transparently
2. collected for specific, explicit, and legitimate purposes
3. adequate, relevant, and limited to what is necessary for processing

BRIEFED™

4. accurate and, where necessary, kept up to date.
5. kept in a form such that the Data Subject can be identified only as long as is necessary for processing
6. processed in a manner that ensures appropriate security of the personal data

This policy will be updated as necessary to reflect best practice in data management, security, and control and to ensure compliance with any changes or amendments made to the General Data Protection Regulation.
